FRENCH MOVE TROOPS FORWARD TO DUSSELDORF

ESSEN, WHERE GREAT GUN PLANT OF
THE GERMAN EMPIRE IS LOCATED, IS
THE NEXT OBJECTIVE OF FOCH ARMY

It Is Anticipated That Movement To Essen Will Begin At Once If The Reparation Commission
Finds Today That Germany Has Defaulted

1500 FRENCH ARE NOW AT DUSSELDORF

Coblenz, Jan. 8.—French troops were on the march today along the Rhine. Engineers and a detachment of railway workers have gone to Essen, the first city to be seized as France takes steps to force reparations payment.

Two regiments of artillery and infantry have been ordered from Etinal. Troops are quietly assembling at Dusseldorf in slow detachments.
Tanks and armored cars will form
the advance guards, it is reported, when actual activities of the Ruhr start.

All that was needed to put in motion the war machinery of France which has been drilled and kept so long throughout the Rhineland was word from Paris that the Reparation Commission had formally found Germany in default.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—Fifteen hundred French troops arrived at Dusseldorf on Sunday and demanded accommodations. The mayor of that city notified the government here today.

Three hundred automobiles were commandeered by the troops, two schools and part of the Bureau of Finance were taken for quarters for three hundred officers, the mayor reported.

The town was in a state of excitement. Government officials believe that troops will be sent forward to Essen immediately.

Paris, Jan. 8.—Invasion of the Ruhr, for which France rushed warlike preparations, today depends on the action of the Reparations Commission, which meets today.

Germany is to be called to task for failure to deliver the scheduled amount of coal in 1921 and if her explanation is unsatisfactory, invasion by France is believed certain to follow.

Premier Poincare has announced he will address the Chamber of Deputies Thursday, so it is not considered likely that actual invasion will start before Friday.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—The French Commander at Mainz has asked the British to transfer the military control at Cologne bridgehead to the French, according to Der Tag today.

The British refused, pending communication with London, it was said.
French troops from Dusseldorf will move into Essen, where the great Krupp works are located, and Bochum, the newspapers say.

CURTIS COMPANY IS UPHELD IN CONTRACT BEFORE HIGH COURT

Washington, Jan. 8.—The Federal Trade Commission today in the Supreme Court lost its legal fight to force the Curtis Publishing Company to cancel contracts under which distributors for Curtis publications are barred from handling the magazine of any other publishing house.

Last year about this time The Progress asked for clothing for use of the Tuberculosis Dispensary. Miss Lundgren asks for help again. She had many calls for clothing. Men's clothing, infants' wear and bed clothing are needed badly. Let us all send something around to headquarters on Third street.

BALDWIN DECLARES BRITAIN WILL PAY FIVE BILLION DEBT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—America today received official assurance of Great Britain's intention to pay her war loan from the United States totaling five billion dollars in principal and interest.

The assurance was given by Stanley Baldwin, British War Funding Debt Commission called today in the Treasury Department.

KILLED TWO MEN BY SAME BULLET; GOES ON TRIAL TODAY

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 8.—Jacob Miller of New Geneva was placed on trial today charged with killing two men with one bullet. The argument started over a fifty-cent bet on a card game. Miller, it is claimed, left the card game, went to his home and got a .45 calibre rifle from under a bed in which two women slept without arousing them.

Returning to the game, Miller is charged with having fired at Harry Brown, who was standing in front of Edgar Blair. The bullet passed thru Brown's heart, crashed thru Blair's skull and out through the wall. The bullet never was found.

McCormick Underwent Second Operation Last Night For Appendicitis

Paris, Jan. 8.—Harold McCormick, stricken suddenly, was operated upon at midnight for appendicitis and his condition today was announced as satisfactory.

Ganna Walska has abandoned her American tour and will nurse her millionaire husband back to health.
Haggard after an all-night vigil, the Polish prima donna said: "The operation was simply for appendicitis and had nothing whatever to do with Mr.
McCormick's Chicago operation."

Three days must pass before the harvester king can be pronounced out of danger. His illness came so suddenly that three doctors were summoned to his home last night and there was no time to take him to a hospital.

SLAYER OF MRS. BRIGHAM SENTENCED TO DEATH

Newark, N. J., Jan. 8.—William Battle, a negro, aged 19, was sentenced to death today for the murder of Mrs. Eleanor Brigham.
He will be executed the week of February 11th.

Babes in the Senatorial Woods

When Senator-elect Clarence G. Dill (right) of Washington takes his seat March 4, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi will relinquish his title of the "baby of the Senate." Senator Dill is 38 and Senator Harrison 41.

TRAIN HITS LUMBER TRUCK, UNLOADING IT AT GREAT SPEED

Lex McCloskey, who drives for the Graham Lumber Company now knows how to have a load of lumber quickly removed from his truck, but he is not in favor of the method regardless of its speed. This morning as the 11:10
New York Central passenger train was traveling through the West Side on the B. & O. tracks Lex approached the Nichols street crossing with his truck loaded with lumber, the load extending a couple of feet beyond the end of the truck. It being impossible to see either up or down the railroad track until you get right to it, he failed to note the oncoming train until he was fairly on the crossing. He managed to beat the engine by inches with his truck, but the load was not so fortunate.
The engine ploughed into the protruding lumber and scraped it off the truck quicker'n you could say sea.

The only casualty was a couple of broken upright supports and the loss of a little extra perspiration as the driver reloaded and continued his journey.

MER ROUGE PROBE TO BE BROADENED TO ALL ACTIVITIES

Court House, Bastrop, La., Jan. 8.
Activities of the Ku Klux Klan in Morehouse Parish will be exposed in connection with the open hearing for the torturous murders of Watt Daniel and Thomas Richards. State officials declared today.

The announcement was made by Attorney General Cocco in outlining steps to be followed in the present inquiry of the bodies of the two men claimed to be found in the bottom of Lake LaFourche.

"Raiding and night riding activities in which it is known that hooded members of the Ku Klux Klan took part" Cocco said "was gone into fully." A call for this open hearing was so worded that it gave us the right to take up these matters.

Mrs. Thompson, Who Is To Hang Tomorrow, May Get A Respite

London, Jan. 8.—Home Secretary Bridgeman tonight is expected to give a final reply to Mrs. Edith Thompson for a postponement of her execution, scheduled for tomorrow.

Her attorney today visited the Home Secretary and persuaded him to take into consideration the question of granting the plea, according to the Daily Express. His final decision, however, has not yet been given.

BURNING FLUE AGAIN

A burning flue at the residence of Leonard Wisner was the means of calling the firemen to the East End Saturday evening, but their services were not required.

OFFICIALS PREPARE TO GO BEFORE THE GRAND JURY PROBE

The preliminaries leading up to the investigation by the Grand Jury into the sanitary and living conditions at the Clearfield county jail go on apace and we are able to report that the subpoena to appear before the Grand Jury and tell what he knows concerning same was served on Rev. Richard A. Hatch, Saturday last.

Rev. Hatch, whose sensational charges in an address before the Clearfield Rotary Club Thursday evening last and responsible for the proposed investigation, has thus far made no statement of his intention in the matter of further enlightenment or information on the condition of the jail and may be content to
"stand pat" (not a stud poker term) on what he already knows and has spoken of. The Progress scribe endeavored to interview the reverend gentleman on the matter but thus far has been unable to get in touch with him.

As the County Commissioners and Sheriff were notified of the matter pending in Judge Bell's order for the investigation we called upon Sheriff Lowell at his office this morning and endeavored to get his views concerning both Rev. Hatch's charges and the condition of the jail. Sheriff Lowell refused to be interviewed, stating that he was placed in a peculiar position. He said he decided from what he had read of Rev.
Hatch's remarks before the Rotary Club that while no direct charge was made against the keeper of the jail, as such keeper he believed it to be his duty to refrain from comment until summoned before the Grand Jury.

We also interviewed T. R. Weimer, president of the Board of County Commissioners this morning. When the matter of the charges of Rev.
Hatch as to the condition of the jail and the proposed Grand Jury investigation was called to his attention, Mr. Weimer said: "Well, the jail is in the same condition it has been for years, not any worse. We have been doing all we could to keep it in shape and will have a statement ready for publication by tomorrow showing just what we have been doing in the way of improvement and repairs down there. County Controller Thompson is engaged in making up a statement of the money expended upon it the past year."

This statement and Rev. Hatch's statement, if same be available, will be published tomorrow.

Meanwhile the "stud game" continues at great length, while the bedbugs remain gnashing their teeth, after puncturing the tough hide of the bootlegger in his enforced exile.

Miss Esther Bowes and Miss Ruta
Johnston attended the basket ball game at DuBois Friday evening.

Merchant Fined For Keeping Boy Out Of School To Pass Bills

The Clearfield School Board, by Trust Officer Reese, made information Friday last against Aaron Lobel, the Third street merchant, charging him with violation of the compulsory attendance law.

The facts adduced at the hearing before Squire Chorpennig were to the effect that on November 8, 1922, Lobel accosted three boys en route to school and not only counseled them to remain away from school, but hired them to work for him astray using bills in neighboring towns that day.

Squire Chorpennig fined Lobel $10 and costs and advised him not to do it again.

O. U. A. M. Enjoy Social Hour Saturday Evening With Fine Entertainment

On the occasion of the installation of officers for the coming year, the local council of United Order American Men, formerly known as the "Mechanics," enjoyed an entertaining after hour Saturday evening in their commodious lodge room on Nichols street. Oscar W. Gearhart, who was installed as Counselor for the coming year, arranged a nice little program with speaking and lunch afterwards.

The entertainers were Messrs.
Bridge and Malloy, with saxophone and violin and Miss Evelyn Smith at the piano. The several numbers they gave were very enjoyable and heartily applauded. A real honest-to-goodness Scotchman from Chicago also gave a Lauder selection and one of two of his own which brought down the house.

The speakers were John M. Bain and Editor Stewart of The Progress.
Professor Trostle was also on the card but because of illness was forced to postpone his appearance. A fine little lunch ended a perfect evening.

search for Hugo Schleisinger, aged sixty-three, wealthy Milwaukee business man, who mysteriously disappeared after leaving a hotel on Friday, was started today. Police believe he was kidnapped.

Schleisinger was an uncle of Am-mar and Harry Schleisinger, millionaire owners of the Goodrich Tire & Rubber Company.

PINCHOT WILL BE HIGHEST SALARIED GOVERNOR IN U. S.

Will Get $18,000 Ex-
Year and Allowance
Over $7,000 to Pay
Help About Mans

SHOULD BE AMPLIFIED

Harrisburg, Jan. 8.—When Pinchot comes to Harrisburg to pin his duties as Governor of sylvania he will be the highest chief executive of any in the according to Smull's because $8,000 increase in the salary of sylvania Governors. Leonard as Governor of the Philippine receives $20,000 and Len Smith receives $12,000 yearly governorship of South Carolina all its tradition of conservatism the Governor of North Carolina but $3,000 a year as does that of Hampshire and Vermont. In addition to the $18,000 salary, Pennsylvania pays $7,200 towards expenses of Executive mansion for salaries of butler, houseman, night watchman, housekeeper, housemaid, laundry cook, footman and chauffeur. With the governor may have a $100 month chauffeur to drive his car and a $100 night watchman to guard valuables, he must eat food cooking, a sixty-dollar a month cook if he follows the schedule of salaries provided by the State. These employees are among the personnel of the Department of Public Grounds and Buildings and with the exception of two matrons at the Capitol building and two female attendants, the Governor's cook is poorer paid than any other employee in that department and side of the executive mansion. The man who polishes the marble at the Capitol receives $1,400; the locksmith, $1,320; the window cleaners receive $1,000; helper for the engine room, $960 and the guide $1,100.

In addition to the increased salary Governor Pinchot will have available part of the $20,000 appropriated for Governor Sproul's use in entertaining. Governor Brumbaugh used the full appropriation during his term but there will be a balance in the fund when the next administration comes in.

As Lieutenant Governor, however,
Col. David J. Davis will not fare proportionately well. His salary is but $5,000 a year. The Governor's secretary receives $7,500, the secretary of the Senate, $7,500 and the chief clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives receive more than the Lieutenant Governor and all receive at least $6,000. Three of the deputy generals department receive as much or more, while the deputy state treasurer receives $8,000. Deputy intendent of Public Instruction, deputy Forestry Commissioner and several employees of the Department of Agriculture fare better.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

Our Democratic brethren are busy today celebrating the birthday of that apostle of Democracy, Andrew Jackson, and for the purpose of giving you a slant behind the scenes in the days of "Old Hickory," we print the following concerning the days when old "By the Eternal" was making history nearly one hundred years ago:

Things Were Different Then.
The Washington of Jackson's time was an entirely different place from what it is today. A town of 20,000 inhabitants, without sidewalks, paved with mud, it was without direct communication by railroad with the outside world. The end of the line was at Baltimore, and one had to engage the intervening distance by stage-coach.

It was a time of easy morals. Even the President himself betted at horse races, losing great sums. Jackson was a heeder of fighting cocks and frequently rode to Bladensburg to see the humiliation of his enemies.

The geart Clay, who was no better nor worse than his contemporaries, and yet he lost a fortune at cards. The statesman who did not drink was a rarity. It is said that never before nor afterwards have so many promising careers at the national capital been ruined by drink than during the third decade. National celebrities would frequently appear on the floor of the Senate and House soused to the ears. On one occasion at least the greater part of the House was hilariously drunk.

Time of High Ginks.
Washington of the thirties was easily the gayest, the most brilliant and the most dissipated community in the whole country. The women who passed the winter there usually contemplated the Washington season as a kind of a lark, and they enjoyed things considerably. It was the time of social novelties. Ice cream as a refreshment first made its appearance in the capital at the home of the widow of Alexander Hamilton. It was immediately introduced into the capital by Jackson and it took society by storm. Kinchly, the confectioner on the avenue, who had a monopoly on ice creams and ices, became an indispensable part of every social function. The waltz had been introduced two years before the inauguration of Jackson, and was, at first, considered of questionable modesty, but it soon found its way and was quite as alluring to the matrons as to the debutantes. Even then there were notorious people who saw in the waltz an example of the degenerate tendency of the age.

It was a time when the greatest social lions rarely saw the light of day. One time at a funeral the British minister turned to the wife of the Spanish minister and said: "How strange we all look in daylight."

Indeed, some of the great celebrities of the time whom the school history books have taught us to regard as cast iron men were human—exceedingly human, after all. You can't tell what a man was by the steel engraving of him on the wall

The Rev. Edwin Curtis, who incurred the displeasure of the Boston Presbytery when he baptized a dog and invoked divine blessing on French fried potatoes, holds the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Brookline under sanction of the law, the Supreme Court ruling in a decision by the full bench. The court dismissed a bill in equity brought by a minority of the church society which sought to restrain use of the church property because Mr. Curtis did not have the approval of the Presbytery. It was ruled that the great majority of the members of the church favored Mr. Curtis' retention and so there was no controversy recognizable by the court.

Somebody asked Attorney-General Daugherty to suggest a New Year's resolution for the American people, and this is what he said:

"I am impressed with the thought that no nobler resolutions may be taken by any inhabitant of this republic than that he will live the life of a 100 per cent American; that he will dedicate himself to strict observance of the laws of his country;

That he will obey them in letter and spirit, all of them, even though there be some that, in his individual opinion, hurt." The first requirement is rather vague. Who knows what a "100 per cent American" really means. But the rest is definite and practical.

What a difference it would make in all our national life if every citizen took for his mark obedience to law and lived up to it! It is true that the big, spectacular crimes and outbreaks against the law are confined to a very small percentage of the population, but there are little leaks in law-abiding all along the line.

What if Americans agreed individually and collectively to stop these leaks as well as the bigger violations? What if they worked actively to support and enforce the laws which publicly they agree are framed for the common good and which privately they are prone to evade if they see a little personal advantage? National laws, state laws, local ordinances kept in the spirit and the letter even where they hurt—is it a fine suggestion?—Where is the community to step forward and put it through on a 100 per cent basis?

J. D. C. in his column Saturday from New York City, who couldn't see anything wrong there, went far afield up into the Vintondale community and reported finding women and children barefooted with four-toes bruised and bleeding, not knowing that many women insist on going barefooted. Anybody familiar with mining camps with foreign population has seen these things and knows the facts.

We are heartily in favor of looking into the almshouses, especially our own County Home, but when the Rotarians and the other citizens of Clearfield county are advised to go far afield, let the boundary lines of Clearfield County be the extent of their wanderings, else they will have to start back as soon as they arrive there to get back by evening.

What is the answer to the questions asked Saturday? Satire, sarcasm and ridicule does not kill vermin or repair plumbing and is used only as a substitute for logic in the absence of facts.

A squad of "trouble shooters" in the absence of facts.

PUNISHMENT

Punishment does not make children good. It may even make them bad. But proper punishment, given in the right spirit, may cure or correct a fault.

There are three kinds of punishment: First, the punishment to revenge a "to get even," second, the punishment to frighten people from doing wrong; third, the punishment that will really make them better.

Parents often punish children on a "strike-back" basis. This is a very common punishment in many homes.

Road House Proprietor Found Dead In His Room

Freeport, N. Y., Jan. 8.—James S. Pettit, aged 32, the proprietor of the Malsapessau, was mysteriously shot and killed in his home here early today.

"Billie" Wells, aged 30, his housekeeper, was locked up in the Mineola jail and according to police will be charged with the slaying.

The hotel, a famous road house, has been placed under guard. The body of Pettit, who was well known as a trapper, was found in his bedroom with a gun shot wound in his breast.

Hunt Pearson, who is believed to have been the hotel building, said that Miss Wells came rushing into his room early today, declaring, "They are all drunk at the hotel," and asked him to come over and quiet things down. He refused and while the woman was there a policeman and waitress came to the door and said that Pettit had been killed.

AN APPRECIATION

The Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society held a meeting on Friday evening last and heard most encouraging preliminary reports of the recent Christmas Seal Sales. From present indications the receipts from the sale will be larger than last year and many county districts have not as yet reported. As this is the only source of income for this worthy organization it will mean a great deal in next year's work.

By a unanimous vote it was decided to extend hearty appreciation and thanks to the merchants, the Druggists, the theatre management, the Women's Club, the Junior Women's Club, the Girl Scouts, the various religious, social and fraternal organizations, and to any and all persons through whose co-operation the most successful sale ever attempted in our county was put over the top.

The various newspapers whose support can not be too highly spoken of are asked to copy this notice as we accept their own full measure of credit and thanks.

Misplaced Love Lead To Tragedy

CHAPTER XI

She paused, and stood for a moment, her face all with proud and flaming cheeks, then amid a haze which did not seem to effect at the least she stepped down, and approached the man who, she had been told had a right to her confidence, she said, loud enough for all who wished to hear her.

"I am ready to give you whatever information you may require. Shall I step into the drawing room with you?"

He bowed and as they disappeared into the great hall the hubbub of voices became tumultuous.

I found myself adverse to any kind of talk. Till I could meet Sinclair's eyes I did not feel free to be my ordinary self again. But Sinclair showed every evidence of wishing to keep in the background, and I regretted it odd and very unlike him to give me an opportunity to extend my congratulations at the affairs had taken and the frankitude assumed by Gilbertine. Before I knew it, I was the prey to all doubts which I did my best to other, because I was still too old under the influence of Gilbertine's personality to wish to believe that what her words conveyed, a great love, spoken the truth, but a little the entire truth? Ah, Dorothy!

It was time some one told her that Gilbertine had openly vindicated and that she could now come and face her friends without a shadow and without dread. Was it in the conservatory?

Approaching the place by the door connecting it with the room in which I stood, I took a quick look within. It was empty, no was the library beyond. Comback, I accepted Dutton and asked him if he knew where Miss Camilla was? He answered that she stood in the rear hall a little before listening to Miss Murray's story. She had then gone up to her room, leaving me to find my way. I thanked him and was on my way to join her, when Mr. Armstrong called me. He must have kept me half hour in his room, discussing my aspect of the affair. I pressed only found myself again in the hall, where the first person I ran against was Sinclair.

He started and so did I at this unexpected encounter. Then we stood still, and I stared at him in amazement, for everything about the man was changed, and in nothing was this change more marked than in his attitude toward myself. Yet he tried to be friendly.

"You heard what Gilbertine said. There is no reason for doubting her words. I do not doubt them and you will show yourself my friend by not doubting them either." Then with some impetuosity he pursued: "Our wedding is postponed—indeinitely. There are reasons why this seemed best to Miss Murray. To you, I will say that postponed nuptials seldom culminate in marriage. In fact, I have just released Miss Murray from all obligations to myself."

What was I to say, what could I say, in response to such a declaration following so immediately upon his warm assertion of her innocence? Nothing.

He saw my embarrassment, possibly my emotion, for he smiled somewhat bitterly and remarked: "Miss Murray has my good wishes. Out of respect to her position I shall show her a friend's attention while we remain in this house. That is all I have to say, Walter. You and I have held our last conversation on this subject."

He was gone before I had sufficiently recovered to realize that in this conversation I had no part, neither had it contained any explanation of the very facts which had once formed our greatest grounds for doubt, namely, Beaton's dream, the smothered cry uttered behind Sinclair's shoulder when he first made known the deadly qualities of the little vial, and lastly, the strange desire acknowledged to both these young ladies, to touch and hold an object calculated rather to repel than to attract the normal feminine heart.

My one desire was to act, and that immediately. Dorothy, for all Gilbertine's intimation to the contrary, held the key to the enigma in her own breast.

My one hope, then, of understanding the matter lay with her. To seek her at once in the place where I have been told she awaited me seemed the only course to take.

I was at the door of the boudoir immediately upon forming this resolution. Finding it ajar, I pushed it open, and entered. To my astonishment, the place was very dark. It was with difficulty I detected the slight, black-robed figure, which, lay, face down, among the cushions of a lounge. She had evidently not heard my entrance, for she did not move; and I advanced in a whirl of feeling which made me forget all but that I loved her and had the utmost confidence in her power to make me happy. Laying my hand softly on her head, I tenderly whispered:

"Look up, dear. Whatever barrier may have intervened between us has fallen. Look up and hear how I love you."

She thrilled as a woman only thrills when her secret soul is moved, and, rising, turned her face upon me, glorious with a feeling that not even the dimness of the room could hide.

Why, then, did my brain whirl and my heart collapse?

It was Gilbertine and not Dorothy who stood before me.

Never had a suspicion crossed my mind of any such explanation of our secret troubles.

Meanwhile, misled by my words, Gilbertine drew back a step and murmured:

"Not just yet; it is too soon. Let me simply enjoy the fact that I am free and that the courage to win my release came from my own suddenly acquired trust in Mr. Sinclair's goodness. Last night—" and she shuddered—"I saw only another way—a way the horrors of which I hardly realized. But God saved me from so dreadful, yes, so unnecessary a crime and this morning—"

It was cruel to let her go on, cruel to stand there and allow this ardent if mistaken nature to unfold itself so ingenuously.

"Gilbertine," I began, "I will make no pretense of misunderstanding you. The situation is too serious, the honor which you do me too great; only I am not free to accept that honor. The word which I uttered were meant for your cousin, Dorothy. I expected to find her in this room. I have long loved your cousin—" secretly, I own but honestly and with every hope of some day making her my wife. I—"

There was no need for me to finish. The warm hand turning to ice in my clasp, the wide-open, blind-struck eyes, the recoil, told me that the blow had gone home and that Gilbertine Murray, the unequalled beauty, the petted darling of society, had reached the height of her many miseries and that it was I who had placed her there.

TRINITY CHURCH EVENTS

The Missionary program, under Superintendent H. B. Powell, Jr. was strongly presented by a group of young ladies. The attendance rounded out 400. Annual election of officers is called for Wednesday evening, 17th.

Strangers were specially noted and welcomed in the morning congregation. The men were out in large numbers. Pastor Jacobs took his people into a sympathetic study of spiritual upheavals. In the evening, from Romans 8:19, "The earnest expectation of the creation waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God" he presented the New Race of Men.

Junior League was a swinging time with the children who engaged heartily in every part of the worship. The Bible book and catechism drills proved fine interesting tests. Miss Margaret Wilson took charge of the singing.

"MISS BOB WHITE" Willys-Overland Agency Put In Capable Hands In Clearfield County

Speaking of fifth and music, the best news along this line came to us today from the High School under whose auspices the musical hit of the season, "Bob White" will be staged by an entire local cast for two nights, the director of the play, who represents the John B. Rogers Producing Co., is now in town rehearsing the big cast of 200 people for final presentation on the above dates.

The High School always known in the past to supply this city with good entertainment have done their utmost to secure the above fantastic from the Rogers people for performance here. This show is so exceptionally clever,—being the one that Raymond Hitchcock, Johnny Slavin and Marguerite Sylva, the renowned Grand Opera Diva, toured the country with for several consecutive years, that the John B. Rogers Producing Company decided to stage it as one of their many musical comedies owing to the fact that it is not too heavy for amateurs. The High School should be congratulated in giving local people the opportunity of seeing the boys and girls in this mirth rollicking, tawful and catchy comedy.

Clearfield will remember the above Company for its previous successful engagement last year when Springtime was presented and packed both houses so that the S. R. O. sign was hung up long before time for the curtain. A good moral for theatre-lovers is to make your reservations early, as "Bob White" is surely a repeater.

The little girl, who was a great favorite with all who knew her, made a game fight for life, but finally was forced to succumb to the dread disease. Her parents have the sincere sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

VALVE-IN-HEAD Buick MOTOR CARS

A Nation's Tribute to Buick

There is an inspiring tribute to an industry in the universal recognition annually accorded the National Automobile Shows.

Thousands come to these exhibitions from every section of the continent and from foreign lands as well, and their advent is widely heralded the world over.

In the twenty-third National Automobile Show, just opening in New York, and later in Chicago, the nation is provided with a display of its chief means of personal transportation. This display is so complete and so magnificently set forth that all who come may easily carry away a perfect picture of the latest accomplishments in motor car building.

Year after year the national shows receive the homage of the entire country. Year after year they mark by their own increased magnitudes and splendor, the increased growth of the automobile industry.

In occupying first place at both national shows for the fifth consecutive year, Buick continues the position in the industry awarded it by universal public opinion.

ESSEN, WHERE GREAT GUN PLANT OF
THE GERMAN EMPIRE IS LOCATED, IS
THE NEXT OBJECTIVE OF FOCH ARMY

It Is Anticipated That Movement To Essen Will Begin At Once If The Reparation Commission
Finds Today That Germany Has Defaulted

1500 FRENCH ARE NOW AT DUSSELDORF

Coblenz, Jan. 8.—French troops were on the march today along the Rhine. Engineers and a detachment of railway workers have gone to Essen, the first city to be seized as France takes steps to force reparations payment.

Two regiments of artillery and infantry have been ordered from Etin-
al. Troops are quietly assembling at Dusseldorf in slow detachments.
Tanks and armored cars will form
the advance guards, it is reported,
when actual activities of the Ruhr
start.

All that was needed to put in motion
the war machinery of France
which has been drilled and kept so
long throughout the Rhineland was
word from Paris that the Reparation Commission had formally found Germany in default.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—Fifteen hundred
French troops arrived at Dusseldorf today and demanded accommodations. The mayor of that city notified the government here today.

Three hundred automobiles were
commandeered by the troops, two schools and part of the Bureau of Finance were taken for quarters for three hundred officers, the mayor reported.

The town was in a state of excitement. Government officials believe that troops will be sent forward to Essen immediately.

Paris, Jan. 8.—Invasion of the Ruhr, for which France rushed war-
like preparations, today depends on the action of the Reparations Commission, which meets today.

Germany is to be called to task
for failure to deliver the scheduled
amount of coal in 1921 and if her explanation is unsatisfactory, invasion by France is believed certain to follow.

Premier Poincare has announced
he will address the Chamber of Deputies Thursday, so it is not considered likely that actual invasion will start before Friday.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—The French Commander at Mainz has asked the British to transfer the military control at Cologne bridgehead to the French,
according to Der Tag today.

The British refused, pending communication with London, it was said.
French troops from Dusseldorf will
move into Essen, where the great Krupp works are located, and Boch-
um, the newspapers say.

CURTIS COMPANY IS UPHELD IN CONTRACT BEFORE HIGH COURT

Washington, Jan. 8.—The Federal
Trade Commission today in the Supreme Court lost its legal fight to
force the Curtis Publishing Company
to cancel contracts under which distributors for Curtis publications are
barred from handling the magazine
of any other publishing house.

Last year about this time The Progress asked for clothing for
use of the Tuberculosis Dispensary. Miss Lundgren asks for help again. She had many calls for clothing. Men's clothing, infants' wear and bed clothing are needed badly. Let us all send
something around to headquarters
on Third street.

BALDWIN DECLARES BRITAIN WILL PAY FIVE BILLION DEBT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—America today received official assurance
of Great Britain's intention to pay
her war loan from the United States
totaling five billion dollars in principal and interest.

The assurance was given by Stanley Baldwin, British War Funding Debt Commission called today in the Treasury Department.

KILLED TWO MEN BY SAME BULLET; GOES ON TRIAL TODAY

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 8.—Jacob Miller of New Geneva was placed on
trial today charged with killing two
men with one bullet. The argument
card game, went to his home and got
a .45 calibre rifle from under a bed
in which two women slept without arousing them.

Returning to the game, Miller is charged with having fired at Harry Brown, who was standing in front of
Edgar Blair. The bullet passed thru
Brown's heart, crashed thru Blair's skull and out through the wall. The bullet never was found.

McCormick Underwent Second Operation Last Night For Appendicitis

Paris, Jan. 8.—Harold McCormick,
stricken suddenly, was operated upon
at midnight for appendicitis and his
condition today was announced as satisfactory.

Ganna Walska has abandoned her
American tour and will nurse her millionaire husband back to health.
Haggard after an all-night vigil, the Polish prima donna said: "The operation was simply for appendicitis and
had nothing whatever to do with Mr.
McCormick's Chicago operation."

Three days must pass before the harvest king can be pronounced out of danger. His illness came so suddenly that three doctors were summoned to his home last night and there was no time to take him to a hospital.

SLAYER OF MRS. BRIGHAM SENTENCED TO DEATH

Newark, N. J., Jan. 8.—William
Battle, a negro, aged 19, was sentenced to death today for the murder of
Mrs. Eleanor Brigham.
He will be executed the week of February 11th.

TRAIN HITS LUMBER TRUCK, UNLOADING IT AT GREAT SPEED

Lex McCloskey, who drives for the Graham Lumber Company now knows
how to have a load of lumber quickly
removed from his truck, but he is not
in favor of the method regardless of its speed. This morning as the 11:10
New York Central passenger train
was traveling through the West Side on the B. & P. tracks Lex approached the Nichols street crossing
with his truck loaded with lumber,
the load extending a couple of feet
beyond the end of the truck. It being impossible to see either up or
down the railroad track until you get
right to it, he failed to note the on-
coming train until he was fairly on
the crossing. He managed to beat the engine by inches with his truck,
but the load was not so fortunate.
The engine ploughed into the protruding lumber and scraped it off the
truck quicker'n you could say sea.

The only casualty was a couple of
broken upright supports and the loss of a little extra perspiration as the driver reloaded and continued his journey.

MER ROUGE PROBE TO BE BROADENED TO ALL ACTIVITIES

Court House, Bastrop, La., Jan. 8.
Activities of the Ku Klux Klan in Morehouse Parish will be exposed in connection with the open hearing
for the torturous murders of Watt
Daniel and Thomas Richards. State
officials declared today.

The announcement was made by Attorney General Coco in outlining steps to be followed in the present
inquiry of the bodies of the two men
claimed to be found in the bottom of Lake LaFourche.

"Raiding and night riding activities in which it is known that hooded members of the Ku Klux Klan took part" Coco said "was gone into fully." A call for this open hearing was so worded that it gave us the right to take up these matters.

Mrs. Thompson, Who Is To Hang Tomorrow, May Get A Respite

London, Jan. 8.—Home Secretary
Bridgeman tonight is expected to give a final reply to Mrs. Edith Thompson for a postponement of her execution, scheduled for tomorrow.

Her attorney today visited the Home Secretary and persuaded him
to take into consideration the question of granting the plea, according
to the Daily Express. His final decision, however, has not yet been given.

were not required.

OFFICIALS PREPARE TO GO BEFORE THE GRAND JURY PROBE

The preliminaries leading up to the
investigation by the Grand Jury into
the sanitary and living conditions at
the Clearfield county jail go on apace
and we are able to report that the
subpoena to appear before the Grand Jury and tell what he knows concerning same was served on Rev. Richard A. Hatch, Saturday last.

Rev. Hatch, whose sensational
charges in an address before the Clearfield Rotary Club Thursday evening last and responsible for the proposed investigation, has thus far
made no statement of his intention
in the matter of further enlightenment or information on the condition of the jail and may be content to
"stand pat" (not a stud poker term)
on what he already knows and has spoken of. The Progress scribe endeavored to interview the reverend
gentleman on the matter but thus far
has been unable to get in touch with him.

As the County Commissioners and Sheriff were notified of the matter
pending in Judge Bell's order for the
investigation we called upon Sheriff Lowell at his office this morning and
endeavored to get his views concerning both Rev. Hatch's charges and
the condition of the jail. Sheriff Lowell refused to be interviewed,
stating that he was placed in a peculiar position. He said he decided
from what he had read of Rev.
Hatch's remarks before the Rotary Club that while no direct charge was made against the keeper of the jail, as such keeper he believed it to be his duty to refrain from comment until summoned before the Grand Jury.

We also interviewed T. R. Weimer,
president of the Board of County Commissioners this morning. When the matter of the charges of Rev.
Hatch as to the condition of the jail
and the proposed Grand Jury investigation was called to his attention, Mr. Weimer said: "Well, the jail is in the same condition it has been for years, not any worse. We have been doing all we could to keep it in shape
and will have a statement ready for publication by tomorrow showing
just what we have been doing in the way of improvement and repairs
down there. County Controller Thompson is engaged in making up
a statement of the money expended
upon it the past year."

This statement and Rev. Hatch's statement, if same be available, will
be published tomorrow.
Meanwhile the "stud game" continues at great length, while the bed-
bugs remain gnashing their teeth,
after puncturing the tough hide of
the bootlegger in his enforced exile.

Miss Esther Bowes and Miss Ruta
Johnston attended the basket ball game at DuBois Friday evening.

Merchant Fined For Keeping Boy Out Of School To Pass Bills

The Clearfield School Board, by Trust Officer Reese, made information Friday last against Aaron Lobel,
the Third street merchant, charging
him with violation of the compulsory attendance law.

The facts adduced at the hearing before Squire Chorpennig were to
the effect that on November 8, 1922, Lobel accosted three boys en route to
school and not only counseled them
to remain away from school, but
hired them to work for him astraying bills in neighboring towns that day.

Squire Chorpennig fined Lobel $10 and costs and advised him not to do it again.

O. U. A. M. Enjoy Social Hour Saturday Evening With Fine Entertainment

On the occasion of the installation of officers for the coming year, the
local council of United Order American Men, formerly known as the "Mechanics," enjoyed an entertaining
after hour Saturday evening in their commodious lodge room on Nichols street. Oscar W. Gearhart, who was installed as Councilor for the coming year, arranged a nice little program
with speaking and lunch afterwards.

The entertainers were Messrs.
Bridge and Malloy, with saxophone
and violin and Miss Evelyn Smith at
the piano. The several numbers they gave were very enjoyable and heartily applauded. A real honest-to-goodness Scotchman from Chicago also
gave a Lauder selection and one of two of his own which brought down
the house.

The speakers were John M. Bain
and Editor Stewart of The Progress.
Professor Trostle was also on the
card but because of illness was forced
to postpone his appearance. A fine little lunch ended a perfect evening.

mar and Harry Schleisinger, millionaire owners of the Goodrich Tire & Rubber Company.

the governor may have a $100 month chauffeur to drive his car

the full appropriation during his term
but there will be a balance in the
fund when the next administration
comes in.

As Lieutenant Governor, however,
Col. David J. Davis will not fare proportionately well. His salary is but $5,000 a year. The Governor's secretary receives $7,500, the secretary of the Senate, $7,500 and the chief clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives receive more than the Lieutenant Governor and all receive
at least $6,000. Three of the deputy
generals department receive as much

treasurer receives $8,000. Deputy
intendent of Public Instruction,
deputy Forestry Commissioner and

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

Our Democratic brethren are busy today celebrating the birthday of that apostle of Democracy, Andrew Jackson, and for the purpose of giving you a slant behind the scenes in the days of "Old Hickory," we print the following concerning the days when old "By the Eternal" was making history nearly one hundred years ago:

Things Were Different Then.
The Washington of Jackson's time was an entirely different place from what it is today. A town of 20,000 inhabitants, without sidewalks, paved with mud, it was without direct communication by railroad with the outside world. The end of the line was at Baltimore, and one had to engage the intervening distance by stage-coach.

It was a time of easy morals. Even the President himself betted at horse races, losing great sums. Jackson was a breeder of fighting cocks and frequently rode to Bladensburg to see the humiliation of his enemies.

The geart Clay, who was no better nor worse than his contemporaries, and yet he lost a fortune at cards. The statesman who did not drink was a rarity. It is said that never before nor afterwards have so many promising careers at the national capital been ruined by drink than during the third decade. National celebrities would frequently appear on the floor of the Senate and House soused to the ears. On one occasion at least the greater part of the House was hilariously drunk.

Time of High Ginks.
Washington of the thirties was easily the gayest, the most brilliant and the most dissipated community in the whole country. The women who passed the winter there usually contemplated the Washington season as a kind of a lark, and they enjoyed things considerably. It was the time of social novelties. Ice cream as a refreshment first made its appearance in the capital at the home of the widow of Alexander Hamilton. It was immediately introduced into the capital by Jackson and it took society by storm. Kinchly, the confectioner on the avenue, who had a monopoly on ice creams and ices, became an indispensable part of every social function. The waltz had been introduced two years before the inauguration of Jackson, and was, at first, considered of questionable modesty, but it soon found its way and was quite as alluring to the matrons as to the debutantes. Even then there were notorious people who saw in the waltz an example of the degenerate tendency of the age.

It was a time when the greatest social lions rarely saw the light of day. One time at a funeral the British minister turned to the wife of the Spanish minister and said: "How strange we all look in daylight."

Indeed, some of the great celebrities of the time whom the school history books have taught us to regard as cast iron men were human—exceedingly human, after all. You can't tell what a man was by the steel en-

The Rev. Edwin Curtis, who incurred the displeasure of the Boston Presbytery when he baptized a dog and invoked divine blessing on French fried potatoes, holds the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church of Brookline under sanction of the law, the Supreme Court ruling in a decision by the full bench.

The court dismissed a bill in equity brought by a minority of the church society which sought to restrain use of the church property because Mr. Curtis did not have the approval of the Presbytery. It was ruled that the great majority of the members of the church favored Mr. Curtis' retention and so there was no controversy recognizable by the court.

Somebody asked Attorney-General Daugherty to suggest a New Year's resolution for the American people, and this is what he said:

"I am impressed with the thought that no nobler resolutions may be taken by any inhabitant of this republic than that he will live the life of a 100 per cent American; that he will dedicate himself to strict observance of the laws of his country;

That he will obey them in letter and spirit, all of them, even though there be some that, in his individual opinion, hurt." The first requirement is rather vague. Who knows what a "100 per cent American" really means. But the rest is definite and practical.

What a difference it would make in all our national life if every citizen took for his mark obedience to law and lived up to it! It is true that the big, spectacular crimes and outbreaks against the law are confined to a very small percentage of the population, but there are little leaks in law-abiding all along the line.

What if Americans agreed individually and collectively to stop these leaks as well as the bigger violations? What if they worked actively to support and enforce the laws which publicly they agree are framed for the common good and which privately they are prone to evade if they see a little personal advantage? National laws, state laws, local ordinances kept in the spirit and the letter even where they hurt—is it a fine suggestion?—Where is the community to step forward and put it through on a 100 per cent basis?

J. D. C. in his column Saturday from New York City, who couldn't see anything wrong there, went far afield up into the Vintondale community and reported finding women and children barefooted with four-toes bruised and bleeding, not knowing that many women insist on going barefooted. Anybody familiar with mining camps with foreign population has seen these things and knows the facts.

We are heartily in favor of looking into the almshouses, especially our own County Home, but when the Rotarians and the other citizens of Clearfield county are advised to go far afield, let the boundary lines of Clearfield County be the extent of their wanderings, else they will have to start back as soon as they arrive there to get back by evening.

What is the answer to the questions asked Saturday? Satire, sarcasm and ridicule does not kill vermin or repair plumbing and is used only as a substitute for logic in the absence of facts.

A squad of "trouble shooters" in the absence of facts.

Punishment does not make children good. It may even make them bad. But proper punishment, given in the right spirit, may cure or correct a fault.

There are three kinds of punishment: First, the punishment to revenge a "to get even," second, the punishment to frighten people from doing wrong; third, the punishment that will really make them better.

Parents often punish children on a strike-back basis. This is a very common punishment in many homes.

Road House Proprietor Found Dead In His Room

Freeport, N. Y., Jan. 8.—James S. Pettit, aged 32, the proprietor of the Malsapessau, was mysteriously shot and killed in his home here early today.

"Billie" Wells, aged 30, his housekeeper, was locked up in the Mineola jail and according to police will be charged with the slaying.

The hotel, a famous road house, has been placed under guard. The body of Pettit, who was well known as a trapper, was found in his bedroom with a gun shot wound in his breast.

Hunt Pearson, who is believed to have shot the proprietor, was found in the hotel building, said that Miss Wells came running into his room early today, declaring, "They are all drunk at the hotel," and asked him to come over and quiet things down. He refused and while the woman was there a policeman and waitress came to the door and said that Pettit had been killed.

AN APPRECIATION

The Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society held a meeting on Friday evening last and heard most encouraging preliminary reports of the recent Christmas Seal Sales. From present indications the receipts from the sale will be larger than last year and many county districts have not as yet reported. As this is the only source of income for this worthy organization it will mean a great deal in next year's work.

By a unanimous vote it was decided to extend hearty appreciation and thanks to the merchants, the Druggists, the theatre management, the Women's Club, the Junior Women's Club, the Girl Scouts, the various religious, social and fraternal organizations, and to any and all persons through whose co-operation the most successful sale ever attempted in our county was put over the top.

The various newspapers whose support can not be too highly spoken of are asked to copy this notice as we accept their own full measure of credit and thanks.

Misplaced Love Lead To Tragedy

CHAPTER XI

She paused, and stood for a moment, her face all with proud and flaming cheeks, then amid a haze which did not seem to effect at the least she stepped down, and approached the man who, she had been told had a right to her confidence, she said, loud enough for all who wished to hear her.

He bowed and as they disappeared into the great hall the hubbub of voices became tumultuous. I found myself averse to any kind of talk. Till I could meet Sinclair's eyes I did not feel free to be my ordinary self again. But Sinclair showed every evidence of wishing to keep in the background, and I regretted it odd and very unlike him to give me an opportunity to extend my congratulations at the affairs had taken and the frankitude assumed by Gilbertine. Before I knew it, I was the prey to all doubts which I did my best to smother, because I was still too old under the influence of Gilbertine's personality to wish to believe that what her words conveyed, a great love, spoken the truth, but a lie to the entire truth? Ah, Dorothy! it was time some one told her that Gilbertine had openly vindicated and that she could now come and face her friends without a shadow and without dread. Was it in the conservatory?

Approaching the place by the door connecting it with the room in which I stood, I took a quick look within. It was empty, no was the library beyond. Comback, I accepted Dutton and asked him if he knew where Miss Camilla was? He answered that she stood in the rear hall a little before listening to Miss Murray. I had then gone up to the second floor, leaving word with him that if anybody asked her she would be found in small parlour over the porch. I thanked him and was on my way to join her, when Mr. Armstrong called me. He must have kept me half hour in his room, discussing my aspect of the affair. I pressed

He started and so did I at this unexpected encounter. Then we stood still, and I stared at him in amazement, for everything about the man was changed, and in nothing was this change more marked than in his attitude toward myself. Yet he tried to be friendly.

"You heard what Gilbertine said. There is no reason for doubting her words. I do not doubt them and you will show yourself my friend by not doubting them either." Then with some impetuosity he pursued: "Our wedding is postponed—indeinitely. There are reasons why this seemed best to Miss Murray. To you, I will say that postponed nuptials seldom culminate in marriage. In fact, I have just released Miss Murray from all obligations to myself."

What was I to say, what could I say, in response to such a declaration following so immediately upon his warm assertion of her innocence? Nothing.

He saw my embarrassment, possibly my emotion, for he smiled somewhat bitterly and remarked: "Miss Murray has my good wishes. Out of respect to her position I shall show her a friend's attention while we remain in this house. That is all I have to say, Walter. You and I have held our last conversation on this subject."

He was gone before I had sufficiently recovered to realize that in this conversation I had no part, neither had it contained any explanation of the very facts which had once formed our greatest grounds for doubt, namely, Beaton's dream, the smothered cry uttered behind Sinclair's shoulder when he first made known the deadly qualities of the little vial, and lastly, the strange desire acknowledged to both these young ladies, to touch and hold an object calculated rather to repel than to attract the normal feminine heart. My one desire was to act, and that immediately. Dorothy, for all Gilbertine's intimation to the contrary, held the key to the enigma in her own breast.

My one hope, then, of understanding the matter lay with her. To seek her at once in the place where I have been told she awaited me seemed the only course to take.

I was at the door of the boudoir immediately upon forming this resolution. Finding it ajar, I pushed it open, and entered. To my astonishment, the place was very dark. It was with difficulty I detected the slight, black-robed figure, which, lay, face down, among the cushions of a lounge. She had evidently not heard my entrance, for she did not move; and I advanced in a whirl of feeling which made me forget all but that I loved her and had the utmost confidence in her power to make me happy. Laying my hand softly on her head, I tenderly whispered:

"Look up, dear. Whatever barrier may have intervened between us has fallen. Look up and hear how I love you."

She thrilled as a woman only thrills when her secret soul is moved, and, rising, turned her face upon me, glorious with a feeling that not even the dimness of the room could hide.

Why, then, did my brain whirl and my heart collapse?

It was Gilbertine and not Dorothy who stood before me. Never had a suspicion crossed my mind of any such explanation of our secret troubles.

Meanwhile, misled by my words, Gilbertine drew back a step and murmured:

"Not just yet; it is too soon. Let me simply enjoy the fact that I am free and that the courage to win my release came from my own suddenly acquired trust in Mr. Sinclair's goodness. Last night—" and she shuddered—"I saw only another way—a way the horrors of which I hardly realized. But God saved me from so dreadful, yes, so unnecessary a crime and this morning—"

It was cruel to let her go on, cruel to stand there and allow this ardent if mistaken nature to unfold itself so ingenuously.

"Gilbertine," I began, "I will make no pretense of misunderstanding you. The situation is too serious, the honor which you do me too great; only I am not free to accept that honor. The word which I uttered were meant for your cousin, Dorothy. I expected to find her in this room. I have long loved your cousin—"

There was no need for me to finish. The warm hand turning to ice in my clasp, the wide-open, blind-struck eyes, the recoil, told me that the blow had gone home and that Gilbertine Murray, the unequalled beauty, the petted darling of society, had reached the height of her many miseries and that it was I who had placed her there.

TRINITY CHURCH EVENTS

The Missionary program, under Superintendent H. B. Powell, Jr. was strongly presented by a group of young ladies. The attendance rounded out 400. Annual election of officers is called for Wednesday evening, 17th.

Strangers were specially noted and welcomed in the morning congregation. The men were out in large numbers. Pastor Jacobs took his people into a sympathetic study of spiritual upheavals. In the evening, from Romans 8:13, "The earnest expectation of the creation waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God" he presented the New Race of Men.

Junior League was a swinging time with the children who engaged heartily in every part of the worship. The Bible book and catechism drills proved fine interesting tests. Miss Margaret Wilson took charge of the singing.

"MISS BOB WHITE" Willys-Overland Agency Put In Capable Hands In Clearfield County

Speaking of fifth and music, the best news along this line came to us today from the High School under whose auspices the musical hit of the season, "Bob White" will be staged by an entire local cast for two nights, the director of the play, who represents the John B. Rogers Producing Co., is now in town rehearsing the big cast of 200 people for final presentation on the above dates.

The High School always known in the past to supply this city with good entertainment have done their utmost to secure the above fantastic from the Rogers people for performance here. This show is so exceptionally clever,—being the one that Raymond Hitchcock, John Slavin and Marguerite Sylva, the renowned Grand Opera Diva, toured the country with for several consecutive years, that the John B. Rogers Producing Company decided to stage it as one of their many musical comedies owing to the fact that it is not too heavy for amateurs. The High School should be congratulated in giving local people the opportunity of seeing the boys and girls in this mirth rollicking, tawful and catchy comedy.

Clearfield will remember the above Company for its previous successful engagement last year when Springtime was presented and packed both houses so that the S. R. O. sign was hung up long before time for the curtain. A good moral for theatre-lovers is to make your reservations early, as "Bob White" is surely a repeater.

An advertisement appeared in this paper on Saturday of the Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles in which the name of the agent and distributor was given as Echard Auto Sales of Daisy Street. In order that we may become better acquainted with this new firm which will be a factor in the business realms of Clearfield we append an introductory article as follows:

S. B. Echard & Sons, proprietors of the well-known Echard Garage a name, opened up a new garage in Clearfield on January 1st, which will be known as the Echard Auto Sales Company. The new garage is located on Daisy Street and directly on the Lake-to-sea Highway.

It will be the aim of Echard and Sons to have the most completely equipped garage in the central part of the state in accessories, etc., and the fact that Mr. Echard and his sons are all finished mechanics assures them success in their new location at the County Seat.

They are agents for the Willys-Knight and Overland, both very popular cars with the masses. Repair work will be efficiently done with absolute guarantee. Competent service will also be continued at their Ramey Garage where they have established an enviable patronage.

A Nation's Tribute to Buick

There is an inspiring tribute to an industry in the universal recognition annually accorded the National Automobile Show.

Thousands come to these exhibitions from every section of the continent and from foreign lands as well, and their advent is widely heralded the world over.

In the twenty-third National Automobile Show, just opening in New York, and later in Chicago, the nation is provided with a display of its chief means of personal transportation. This display is so complete and so magnificently set forth that all who come may easily carry away a perfect picture of the latest accomplishments in motor car building.

Year after year the national shows receive the homage of the entire country. Year after year they mark by their own increased magnitude and splendor, the increased growth of the automobile industry.

In occupying first place at both national shows for the fifth consecutive year, Buick continues the position in the industry awarded it by universal public opinion.
